DEVIL'S WOOL

Slovenian folktale adapted by Anja Štefan

Illustrated by Zvonko Čoh

This magical Slovenian folktale tells a story about a stepmother, keen on getting rid of her stepson. To achieve this, she sends the boy on the devil's mountain to fetch some glass wool. Of course, this is a very difficult task for him, as he has to trick the devil himself in the process. Nevertheless, the adventure has a happy ending for the brave boy, while the stepmother gets what she deserves.

THE BIG WASH

Written by Vinko Möderndorfer

Illustrated by Tanja Komadina

Before the existence of washing machines, our grandmothers washed clothes by hand. They said they were “doing the laundry”. When there was lots of laundry to do, they said they were having “the big wash”. When Redpants learns what this interesting phrase means, she decides to have a big wash, too. Will all end well? Of course, it will!

MISHMASH BAKERY

Written by Svetlana Makarovič

Illustrated by Kostja Gatnik

The story about a mysterious baker called Mishmash and his magic mouse helpers was first published in 1974 and soon became a classic. The present picture book edition features Kostja Gatnik's illustrations awarded the grand Hinko Smrekar prize at the Slovenian Biennial of Illustration.

Format: 21 x 29 cm

32 pages

Age: 6+

»Mishmash the baker was quite an unusual human being. No-one knew where he came from, he spoke little and he never entered another man's home. His eyes were dark and alert, and there was always a smile under his little mustache – he looked a lot like an elf – actually, there is no proof he was not one.«
